THE CONFERENCE THAT CHANGES EVERYTHING

Ignite creativity in a landscape alive with inspiration. There's an energy in the Northwest Territories that sparks creativity and a sense of adventure. Take your next conference away from the everyday and into the Northwest Territories, and come back refreshed and full of new ideas.

In spring and summer, it's "daytime" almost around the clock. The long light-filled hours offer an energy boost that's hard to resist. In autumn and winter, a time of long nights, the Northern Lights dance overhead in a surreal and breathtaking light show.

This is a place to truly unwind from the hustle of city life. Your delegates can escape to concentrate on an unforgettable meeting or conference. They can play a round of golf on a unique sand course, or boat and picnic at midnight. They can fish for world records, or just laze away an afternoon. In winter, snuggled into down parkas, they'll be mesmerized by the light show in the night sky.

The Northwest Territories boasts the venues and services you need to run your next world-class event. From wilderness lodges to city hotels, meeting rooms to conference centres, our professional hotels, meeting centres and planners will ensure a first rate show. And anywhere you go in this vast territory, you will be charmed by a truly northern welcome.

GETTING HERE

You can reach the Northwest Territories from any major city in North America by connecting through the gateway cities of Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver, Toronto, or Ottawa. Then make easy connections with frequently scheduled jet service to Yellowknife and beyond.

Once people make the journey to the Northwest Territories, they are often surprised by how quick and efficient getting here is. West Jet, Air Canada, Air North, and Canadian North fly into and out of Yellowknife regularly from Edmonton, Calgary, Ottawa, Toronto, and Vancouver. With these frequent arrivals, Yellowknife can be reached in less than a day's travel from many cities across Canada and the United States. Many more NWT airlines offer scheduled or charter service within the territory to communities, wilderness rivers, national parks, remote fishing lodges and fishing lakes.

DAVE BROSHA | NWT

Deciding to hold your next conference or event in the Northwest Territories is your first step in the right direction. You will be choosing a unique and spectacular location and you will be putting yourself in the competent hands of experienced professionals.

The NWT Conference Bureau can help you plan your event by suggesting venues and locales as well as pre- and post-conference activities. Several independent conference planners based in the Northwest Territories are available to present creative solutions for your event, and to take care of logistics from flight arrangements and meals, to hotels and entertainment.

Tour operators offer a wide range of sightseeing and adventure packages that can add an extra dimension to your conference or event. Have an extra day? Plan a day trip to explore by boat, air, or walking and skiing trails. Some conference goers might take the opportunity to visit a wilderness lodge, or choose a fishing trip to remember. For spouse and guest activities, and pre- and post-conference events, NWT tour operators offer an attractive array of sightseeing and adventure packages. Have a few days? Enjoy lakeside lodges that cater to your every need.

WHY CHOOSE THE NWT?

10 REASONS TO HAVE YOUR NEXT CONFERENCE IN THE SPECTACULAR NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

The Northwest Territories is a place that feeds your mind, body and soul. When your delegates aren't getting down to business, they'll be feeding their adventurous spirit. And there are countless ways to explore. This conference won't just get results, it'll shorten your Bucket List

1. THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

Pull up a chair and lean back. The Aurora Borealis is on display in the Northwest Territories on clear nights from late August through April. An ideal location on the globe, frequently cloudless skies and extremely low light pollution put your chances of seeing the Aurora at a maximum. Experienced guides can show you the lights in style. Or look up, on your way home from dinner – you might catch a dazzling display of colour when the night sky is dark. The Aurora Borealis is the world's greatest light show. Where better to watch than from the Aurora Capital of the World?

MAKI KAWAI | NWT

J. FERGUSON/NWT TOURISM

2. MIDNIGHT SUN

Imagine catching a trophy fish or scoring a hole in one at midnight, when the sky still looks like mid-afternoon. When the sun never sleeps, why should you?

JOCELYN DEMETRE

3. CATCH OF THE DAY

We've got some of the world's largest and feistiest species of freshwater fish – and we've got them in abundance. The only thing better than the catch is the shore lunch of fresh fish that follows.

TODD LAWSON

4. WATERWAYS

From flat water paddling to running Class 5 rapids, there's a lake or river for every paddler. Travel with an experienced outfitter for a carefree and safe experience on our remote northern rivers and lakes.

JASON SIMPSON

5. WINTER FUN

Try something new or something familiar in an unforgettable setting. Dogsledding, skiing, snowmobiling, snowshoeing – all like you've never seen before.

PIERRE EMANUEL CHAILLON

6. AMAZING WILDLIFE

Take a guided tour – or a simple hike – to see the wildlife that thrives North of 60. You just might see caribou, reindeer, wolves, Arctic fox or muskox, to name a few.

DAVE BROSHA / NWT

7. THE FACILITIES

Our unique architecture is inspired by Northwest Territories' culture and landscape. Spaces can accommodate both intimate and immense gatherings and are equipped for a world-class event.

PAT KANE

8. VIBRANT CULTURE

Eleven official languages are spoken in the NWT's 33 communities. Centuries-old traditions are maintained every day. Marvel at the skill of Dene and Inuvialuit drummers or try jigging to a fiddler in coastal communities to the North.

PAT KANE

9. MEET THE ARTIST

Talk to an artist or buy direct at the Great Northern Arts Festival in Inuvik or the Open Sky Festival in Fort Simpson, where northern carvers and visual artists gather to share their knowledge.

MV BACKYARD TOURS

10. BARRENLANDS

Take in the rich colours and untamed landscape of the barrenlands. Comfortable camps welcome visitors with guided hiking, wildlife viewing and photography.

NORTH SLAVE | WESTERN ARCTIC | SOUTH SLAVE | SAHTU | DEHCHO

DESTINATIONS IN THE NWT

GEROLD SIGL | NWTT

NORTH SLAVE

Yellowknife is capital of the Northwest Territories. In addition to the City's own attractions, the surrounding region is fishing, boating and canoeing country. Set on the north shore of Great Slave Lake, the city provides access to dozens of lodges on pristine lakes and rivers. In autumn and winter, visitors enjoy well-organized Aurora viewing adventures by dog team or at specially equipped lodges.

WIERONIKA MURRAY | NWTT

WESTERN ARCTIC

Inuvik is the centre of the Land of the Midnight Sun, north of the Arctic Circle. For about six weeks each summer the sun never sets. There's year-round road access via the Dempster Highway, new all-season road to Tuktoyaktuk and the Arctic Ocean. Don't miss summer tours on the Mackenzie Delta to fish or spot rare birds raising their chicks. Visit an Arctic Park for a true Arctic adventure.

COUN FIELD | NWTT

SOUTH SLAVE

Hay River and Fort Smith are located south of Great Slave Lake. Hay River is an inland Arctic port, with sea-going tugs and barges, and a wide sandy beach. Fort Smith is headquarters for Wood Buffalo National Park, home to wood bison and the endangered Whooping Crane. White water enthusiasts play in the Slave River rapids in summer, while the park offers awesome star watching in autumn and winter.

CANOE NORTH ADVENTURES

SAHTU

Norman Wells is a centre for tourism through the summer months, and home of the Canol trail. Go for a sightseeing trip to view the Mackenzie Mountains, source of some of the NWT's great canoeing rivers. Attractive and historic communities nearby offer unique cultural experiences. Visit Déline on Great Bear Lake, one of the largest lakes in the world, and spend time in this culturally rich community.

JASON VAN BRUGEN | NWTT

DEHCHO

Fort Simpson is headquarters for two national park reserves, and a mecca for canoeists, hikers and climbers. Don't miss a flight into Nahanni National Park Reserve to see nine-storey-high Virginia Falls, or visit a lodge nestled in the mountains. Great rivers, including Deh Cho (the Mackenzie) and the Liard drain about a fifth of Canada, and guides can show your group some excellent fishing.

CULTURAL EXPERIENCES

PATKANE / NWT

LISA KEON

Wherever you go in the Northwest Territories you'll encounter unique cultural experiences. In our 33 communities, 11 official languages are spoken. Inuvik, which means place of man, celebrates the fusion of Inuvialuit and Gwich'in cultures - two peoples that have roamed the Arctic for millennia. Several festivals dot the Inuvik calendar, offering art and music and the opportunity to meet and engage with Arctic cultures.

In the 1940s, Norman Wells, in the Sahtu Dene region, became the centre for a massive effort to locate a route across the mountains to Whitehorse, Yukon. Now the regional centre for the Sahtu claim, Norman Wells is the gateway to this route, the Canol, a rugged trail for hikers. Sahtu communities like Déline and Fort Good Hope maintain strong ties to cultural traditions, which they are proud to share with visitors.

At Fort Simpson, headquarters for the Dehcho claim, the Slavey people retain strong links to Naha Dehe – the Nahanni. Visitors will meet Slavey Dene and learn their stories at the Open Sky Festival, or on visits to Nahanni National Park Reserve.

North Slave is home to the Tlicho people. Behchoko is the largest of the Tlicho communities, about 80 km west of Yellowknife by road. Visitors may have an opportunity to join in a cultural event – perhaps a drum dance or hand games. In Yellowknife, the Long John Jamboree, Aboriginal Day, Canada Day and Folk on the Rocks bring out a multicultural crowd, and the summertime weekly Farmer's Market features food from the NWT and many countries.

Hay River's twin community is K'atlo'deche, across the Hay River. This Dene Reserve hosts an annual spring event with dog races and a hand games tournament, which draws people from many communities. At Fort Smith, a strong Métis tradition is expressed in summer feasts and a music festival.

BILL BRADEN

DESTINATION NORTH SLAVE:

YELLOWKNIFE

Yellowknife has the ability to host conferences for as many as 1200 delegates. The City, capital of the Northwest Territories, is a centre for culture, mining and exploration. The city was founded on gold, and now is the northern centre for Canadian diamonds. There are four diamond mines operating north of Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories. Canada's diamond production is third in the world by value. Some two dozen restaurants surprise visitors with a tasty selection of cosmopolitan cuisine, ranging from freshwater fish and Arctic char to tapas and sushi.

There are plenty of activities to keep your delegates busy in off time – try an engaging tour of the Territorial museum and the impressive NWT Legislative Building, or take in a performance at the Northern Arts and Cultural Centre. There's fine shopping too, for arts and crafts and diamonds.

Walking and running trails wind through the city's green-spaces and around local lakes. A dozen lakes suitable for canoeing, boating or fishing are just a few minutes out of town. City tourism operators offer local, cultural and naturalist tours and great fishing or paddling on the big lake. There's a challenging 18-hole sand golf course that welcomes visitors and a workshop where visitors can stencil unique designs on recycled glass. In winter, dogsled adventures, snowmobiling and Aurora viewing are featured attractions.

Prices for hotel rooms vary from $125 to $250 per night.

DESTINATION WESTERN ARCTIC: INUVIK

For 50 to 500 delegates Inuvik, is ready to host your event. With a population of 3,500, it's the largest Canadian community north of the Arctic Circle and a centre for government, education, exploration and tourism. Its position at the edge of one of the world's most scenic river deltas makes for a breathtaking conference location.

Of particular interest to those hosting large conferences is the municipal Midnight Sun Complex, which hosts events up to 500 in summer and more intimate gatherings year-round. Comfortable accommodations include three hotels, and an apartment hotel. Prices range from $110 to $250 per night. Delegates have plenty of options for tours in the area. Take in an art or music festival. Compare notes with gardeners at the community greenhouse, a local landmark. Tour the Igloo Church built by volunteers and a visionary priest. Visit Ingamo Hall, the largest log structure in the Arctic, crafted from a thousand logs rafted more than 1300 km down the Mackenzie river.

Inuvik lies at the edge of the scenic Mackenzie Delta. Drive to Tuktoyaktuk for a day tour and the chance to dip a toe in the Arctic Ocean. Let a tourism operator boat you through the Mackenzie Delta channels. Sign your group up for a tour to the Arctic Circle on the Dempster Highway, and a visit to historic Tsiigehtchic and Fort McPherson.

Daily flights connect with Edmonton, Vancouver and Calgary via Yellowknife and Whitehorse. Travel with Canadian North, First Air or Air North.

DESTINATION SOUTH SLAVE:

HAY RIVER

Located at the south end of Great Slave Lake, Hay River is a vibrant and welcoming community. Traditionally a meeting place of the Slavey Dene it quickly became the 'Hub of the North' as the main gateway for transportation of goods to and from North of 60.

Hay River boasts accommodations for over 300 people; hotels, motels, apartment hotels and bed and breakfasts are available. The town has many comfortable meeting facilities located in the Recreation Centre, Legion, golf club and local establishments with the ability of hosting groups of over 300 people. Dining options are many throughout the town, featuring fine dining, cultural cuisine, cafés and take-away fast food.

During the summer season visitors can enjoy a round of golf on the 'Prettiest Course North of 60.' Or, they can explore the sandy beaches filled with driftwood; hunt for fossils millions of years old along the Hay River; travel from town to the lake via the Trans Canada Trail, fish both the river and the lake or enjoy fresh caught fish with chips at the Fishermans Wharf Market every Saturday. They can also view auroras close enough to touch and camp on the shore and canoe on the 10th largest lake in the world (and much more).

Winter offers a wide-variety of attractions as well. Visitors can cross-country ski on an illuminated trail at the golf course, hire a team of dogs to take them sledding, rent snowmobiles or snowshoes to trek up river to the frozen face of the falls and ice fish for dinner. The town hosts regular territorial sport competitions and annual music, art and cultural events throughout the seasons.

Just across the river is the K'at'l'Odeche First Nation Reserve (KFN) that welcomes groups and offers cross-cultural activities, seasonal events, marketplaces, and festivals. The KFN has facilities capable of hosting up to 300 people

A short drive South on the Mackenzie Highway are the Twin Falls Territorial parks, featuring two magnificent waterfalls feeding the Hay River; an ideal spot to camp or hold a group picnic.

Direct flights are available from Yellowknife via Canadian North, Air Tindi, Landa Aviation and Northwestern Air Lease. Rental car options are available in Yellowknife and Hay River. Hay River is a year-round paradise. Come and explore; your adventure awaits!

DESTINATION DEHCHO:

FORT SIMPSON

Fort Simpson is the gateway to Nahanni National Park Reserve. The town has facilities for conferences for up to 100 people, and local airlines offer charter service into the beautiful Nahanni Mountains.

Perched at the scenic confluence of the big Liard River and the even-more-massive Mackenzie, Fort Simpson is the Dehcho's friendly and vibrant regional centre, the gateway to Nahanni National Park Reserve, and a cradle of Indigenous culture and tradition. Many visitors come here on their way to the stunning Nahanni or surrounding mountains, but even if you remain right in town, you'll be charmed and entertained – by the wealth of riverfront heritage sites, by a rolling nine-hole golf course, and by local trails, craft shops, and activities.

Boat tours are offered on the Mackenzie and the North Nahanni rivers.

DESTINATION SAHTU:

NORMAN WELLS

For groups of less than 100, Norman Wells is an excellent choice. Two hotels have restaurants, and rooms range from $150 to $265 per night. The Norman Wells Heritage Centre tells the story of the oil find at Norman Wells and of the Canol Trail. There is a log cabin on site built by a Dene elder, and there are several interesting relics from the Canol era.

The Legion and the Community Hall join the Heritage Hotel with comfortable meeting rooms for up to 100 delegates.

There is a picturesque four-hole golf course behind the Legion, and a collection of aviation memorabilia at DOT lake. Hiking trails in the mountains behind the town lead to scenic lookouts. Local activities include searching for fossils along the shore of the Mackenzie River, trips by air into the Mackenzie Mountains for spectacular scenery and views of parts of the Canol project route, and fishing trips to remote mountain lakes.

Daily flights connect Norman Wells to Edmonton, Calgary, Yellowknife and Inuvik via Canadian North and North-Wright Airways.

SOUTH SLAVE REGION:

FORT SMITH

Fort Smith is nestled on the bank of the Slave River, once the main route to the Northwest Territories. The Northern Life Museum and Cultural Centre and Fort Smith Mission Historic Park offer a glimpse into the region's long history.

The town is headquarters for Wood Buffalo National Park, a UNESCO World Heritage Site and Canada's largest national park. Interpretive tours are offered to learn about park highlights including the free roaming bison, the salt plains and the endangered Whooping Cranes that nest here each summer. It's also a great spot for stargazing and looking at the aurora as it is the largest dark sky preserve in the world!

For whitewater enthusiasts, world class rapids (including class 5) on the Slave River draw paddlers of all experience levels, from across the continent. There are extensive walking trails and in winter skiing and snowmobiling are popular.

Northwestern Air Lease offers scheduled flights to Fort Smith from Edmonton and Yellowknife.
