Ignite creativity in a landscape alive with inspiration. There’s an energy in the Northwest Territories that sparks creativity and a sense of adventure. Take your next conference away from the everyday and into the Northwest Territories, and come back refreshed and full of new ideas.

In spring and summer, it’s “daytime” almost around the clock. The long light-filled hours offer an energy boost that’s hard to resist. In autumn and winter, a time of long nights, the Northern Lights dance overhead in a surreal and breathtaking light show.

The Northwest Territories boasts the venues and services you need to run your next world-class event. From wilderness lodges to city hotels, meeting rooms to conference centres, our professional hotels, meeting centres and planners will ensure a first rate show. And anywhere you go in this vast territory, you will be charmed by a truly northern welcome.

This is a place to truly unwind from the hustle of city life. Your delegates can escape to concentrate on an unforgettable meeting or conference. They can play a round of golf on a unique sand course, or boat and picnic at midnight. They can fish for world records, or just laze away an afternoon. In winter, snuggled into down parkas, they’ll be mesmerized by the light show in the night sky.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES TOURISM | 2016 | SPECTACULAR CONFERENCE GUIDE | 3
Deciding to hold your next conference or event in the Northwest Territories is your first step in the right direction. You will be choosing a unique and spectacular location and you will be putting yourself in the competent hands of experienced professionals.

The NWT Conference Bureau can help you plan your event by suggesting venues and locales as well as pre- and post-conference activities. Several independent conference planners based in the Northwest Territories are available to present creative solutions for your event, and to take care of logistics from flight arrangements to meals, and hotels to entertainment.

Tour operators offer a wide range of sightseeing and adventure packages that can add an extra dimension to your conference or event. Have an extra day? Plan a day trip to explore by boat, air, or walking and skiing trails. Some conference goers might take the opportunity to visit a wilderness lodge, or choose a fishing trip to remember. For spouse and guest activities, and pre- and post-conference events, NWT tour operators offer an attractive array of sightseeing and adventure packages. Have a few days? Enjoy lakeside lodges that cater to your every need.

For more information on planning your next conference in the Northwest Territories visit www.conferences.spectacularnwt.com or email conferences@spectacularnwt.com.

You can reach the Northwest Territories from any major city in North America by flying to Edmonton or Calgary, Alberta or Ottawa, Ontario. Then make easy connections with frequently scheduled jet services to Yellowknife and beyond.

Air Canada, Canadian North, First Air, WestJet, and Air North offer direct jet service to Yellowknife from Edmonton, Calgary and Ottawa. It’s only a ninety-minute flight from Edmonton to Yellowknife, crossing Great Slave Lake. Canadian North and First Air carry on to Norman Wells and Inuvik.

Jets also cross the Arctic from Ottawa via Nunavut, and from Whitehorse, Yukon, to Yellowknife several times a week. From Yellowknife, regional carriers provide scheduled service to all major centres.

WHY CHOOSE THE NWT?

10 REASONS TO HAVE YOUR NEXT CONFERENCE IN THE SPECTACULAR NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

The Northwest Territories is a place that feeds your mind, body and soul. When your delegates aren’t getting down to brass tacks, they’ll be feeding their adventurous spirit. And there are countless ways to explore. This conference won’t just get results. It’ll shorten your Bucket List.

1. THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

Pull up a chair and tip back your head. The Aurora Borealis is on display in the Northwest Territories on clear nights from late August through April. An ideal location on the globe, frequently cloudless skies and extremely low light pollution put your chances of seeing the Aurora at a maximum. It’s said that in the silence of the wilderness you can actually hear them swirl. Experienced guides can show you the lights in style. Or look up, on your way home from dinner – you might catch a dazzling display of colour when the night sky is dark. The Aurora Borealis is the world’s greatest light show. Where better to watch than from the Aurora Capital of the World?

2. MIDNIGHT SUN

Imagine catching a trophy fish or scoring a hole in one at midnight, when the sky still looks like mid-afternoon. When the sun never sleeps, why should you?

3. CATCH OF THE DAY

We’ve got some of the world’s largest and feistiest species of freshwater fish – and we’ve got them in abundance. The only thing better than the catch is the shore lunch of fresh fish that follows.

4. WATERWAYS

From flat water paddling to running Class 5 rapids, there’s a lake or river for every paddler. Travel with an experienced outfitter for a carefree and safe experience on our remote northern rivers and lakes.

5. WINTER FUN

Try something new or something familiar in an unforgettable setting. Dogsledding, skiing, snowmobiling, snowshoeing – all like you’ve never seen before.

6. AMAZING WILDLIFE

Take a guided tour – or a simple hike – to see the wildlife that thrives North of 60. You just might see caribou, reindeer, wolves, Arctic fox or muskox, to name a few.

7. THE FACILITIES

Our unique architecture is inspired by Northwest Territories’ culture and landscape. Spaces can accommodate both intimate and immense gatherings and are equipped for a world-class event.

8. VIBRANT CULTURE

Eleven official languages are spoken in the NWT’s 33 communities. Centuries-old traditions are maintained every day. Marvel at the skill of Dene and Inuvialuit drummers or try jigging to a fiddler in coastal communities to the North.

9. MEET THE ARTIST

Talk to an artist or buy direct at the Great Northern Arts Festival in Inuvik or the Open Sky Festival in Fort Simpson, where northern carvers and visual artists gather to share their knowledge.

10. BARRENLANDS

Take in the rich colours and untamed landscape of the barrenlands. Comfortable camps welcome visitors with guided hiking, wildlife viewing and photography.
NORTH SLAVE | WESTERN ARCTIC | SOUTH SLAVE | SAHTU | DEHCHO

DESTINATIONS IN THE NWT

NORTH SLAVE
Yellowknife is capital of the Northwest Territories. In addition to the City’s own attractions, the surrounding region is fishing, boating and canoeing country. Set on the north shore of Great Slave Lake, the city provides access to dozens of lodges on almost uncounted lakes and rivers. In autumn and winter, visitors enjoy well-organized Aurora viewing adventures by dog team or at specially equipped lodges.

WESTERN ARCTIC
Inuvik is the centre of the Land of the Midnight Sun, north of the Arctic Circle. For about six weeks each summer the sun never sets. There’s year round road access via the Dempster Highway, and in winter, ice roads extend to Tuktoyaktuk and to Aklavik nearby. Don’t miss summer tours on the Mackenzie Delta to fish or spot rare birds raising their chicks. Visit an Arctic Park for a true Arctic adventure.

SOUTH SLAVE
Hay River and Fort Smith are located south of Great Slave Lake. Hay River is an inland Arctic port, with sea-going tugs and barges, and a wide sandy beach. Fort Smith is headquarters for Wood Buffalo National Park, home to wood bison and the endangered Whooping Crane. White water enthusiasts play in the Slave River rapids in summer, while the park offers awesome star watching in autumn and winter.

SAHTU
Norman Wells is a centre for tourism through the summer months, and home of the Canol story. Go for a sightseeing trip to view the Mackenzie Mountains, source of some of the NWT’s great canoeing rivers. Attractive and historic communities nearby offer unique cultural experiences. Visit Deline on Great Bear Lake, one of the largest lakes in the world, and spend time in this culturally rich community.

DEHCHO
Fort Simpson is headquarters for two national park reserves, and a mecca for canoeists, hikers and climbers. Don’t miss a flight into Nahanni National Park Reserve to see nine-storey-high Virginia Falls, or visit a lodge nestled in the mountains. Great rivers, including Dah Cho (the Mackenzie) and the Liard drain about a fifth of Canada, and guides can show your group some excellent fishing.

CULTURAL EXPERIENCES

Wherever you go in the Northwest Territories you’ll encounter unique cultural experiences. In our 33 communities, 11 official languages are spoken. Inuvik, which means place of man, celebrates the fusion of Inuvialut and Gwich’in cultures — two peoples that have roamed the Arctic for millennia. Several festivals dot the Inuvik calendar, offering art and music and the opportunity to meet and engage with Arctic cultures.

In the 1940s, Norman Wells, in the Sahtu Dene region, became the centre for a massive effort to locate a route across the mountains to Whitehorse, Yukon. Now the regional centre for the Sahtu claim, Norman Wells is the gateway to this route, the Canol, a rugged trail for hikers. Sahtu communities like Deline and Fort Good Hope maintain strong ties to cultural traditions, which they are proud to share with visitors.

At Fort Simpson, headquarters for the Dehcho claim, the Slavey people retain strong links to Nah Dahe – the Nahanni. A mysterious tribe once inhabited the mountains, but they disappeared many years ago. Visitors will meet Slavey Dene and learn their stories at the Open Sky Festival, or on visits to Nahanni National Park Reserve.

North Slave is home to the Tlicho people. Behchoko is the largest of these communities, about 80 km west of Yellowknife by road. Visitors may have an opportunity to join in a cultural event — perhaps a drum dance or hand games. In Yellowknife, the Long John Jamboree, Aboriginal Day, Canada Day and Folk on the Rocks bring out a multicultural crowd, and the summertime weekly Farmer’s Market features food from the NWT and many countries.

Hay River’s twin community is K’atlodéeche, across the Hay River. This Dene Reserve hosts an annual spring event with dog races and a hand games tournament, which draws people from many communities. At Fort Smith, a strong Métis tradition is expressed in summer feasts and a music festival.
There are plenty of activities to keep your delegates busy in off time – from a welcoming visitor centre to a fine territorial museum, from the unique snowhouse shaped NWT Legislative Assembly building to a 297 seat Northern Arts and Cultural Centre. There’s fine shopping too, for arts and crafts and diamonds.

Walking and running trails wind through parkland and around local lakes. A dozen lakes suitable for canoeing, boating or fishing are just a few minutes out of town. City tourism operators offer local, cultural and naturalist tours and great fishing or paddling on the big lake. There’s a challenging 18-hole sand golf course that welcomes visitors and a workshop where visitors can stencil unique designs on recycled glass. In winter, dog sled adventures, snowmobiling and Aurora viewing are featured attractions.

Prices for hotel rooms vary from $125 to $250 per night.

DESTINATION NORTH SLAVE:
YELLOWKNIFE

Yellowknife has the ability to host conferences for as many as 1200 delegates. The City, capital of the Northwest Territories, is a centre for culture, mining and exploration. The city was founded on gold, and now is the northern centre for Canadian diamonds. There are three diamond mines operating north of Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories, and one more opening in 2016. Canada’s diamond production is third in the world by value. Some two dozen restaurants surprise visitors with a tasty selection of cosmopolitan cuisine, ranging from freshwater fish and Arctic char to tapas and sushi.

DESTINATION SOUTH SLAVE:

HAY RIVER

South of Great Slave Lake, Hay River is a traditional meeting place of the Slavey Dene. The town has a well-deserved reputation for energy and ingenuity. Modern and newly renovated hotels cater to business events and offer fine dining, sports bars and fitness rooms. Comfortable meeting facilities at Hay River’s recreation centre, the Legion and the golf club can host groups of up to 150 people.

Accommodation is available for up to 300 at various hotels, motels and apartment hotels. Prices range from $100 to $230 per night.

Hay River is home of Buffalo Airways, the star of reality television show Ice Pilots NWT. The company’s vintage DC-3 aircraft carry passengers to Yellowknife across Great Slave Lake. Visitors can enjoy a round of golf on a pretty nine-hole course beside the Hay River, or walk the sandy beaches and regional trails. In winter, dogsledding is an option. Across the river and half an hour away by road is the K’atlodéeche Reserve that welcomes groups and offers cross cultural activities.

A short drive south on the Mackenzie Highway is Twin Falls Park, featuring two magnificent waterfalls feeding the Hay River, an ideal spot for a group picnic.

Direct flights provided from Edmonton and Yellowknife via Northwestern Air Lease, First Air and Buffalo Airways.

FORT SIMPSON

Fort Simpson is the gateway to Nahanni National Park Reserve. This is an ideal location for a small group, who can then tour the park by air. The town has facilities at the recreation centre for conferences for up to 100 persons, and local airlines offer charter service into the Nahanni's highlights.

Fort Simpson is located on an island at the confluence of the Liard and Mackenzie rivers. The town has several active artists, who draw on the skills and traditions of the Slavey Dene of the region. A cultural exchange is possible.

This is the town that the late Pope John Paul II visited in 1987, and the location of the visit is a heritage area overlooking the rivers. The village has an attractive golf course, and walking trails. Boat tours are offered on the Mackenzie and the North Nahanni rivers.

First Air and Air Tindi offer scheduled flights to Fort Simpson from Yellowknife.

2016 CONFERENCE GUIDE LISTINGS

DESTINATION DEHCHO:
For groups of less than 100, Norman Wells is an excellent choice. Two hotels have restaurants, and rooms range from $150 to $265 per night. The Norman Wells Heritage Centre tells the story of the oil find at Norman Wells and of the Canol Trail. There is a log cabin on site built by a Dene elder, and there are several interesting relics from the Canol era.

The Legion and the Community Hall join the Heritage Hotel with comfortable meeting rooms for up to 100 delegates. There is a picturesque four hole golf course behind the Legion, and a collection of aviation memorabilia at DOT lake. Hiking trails in the mountains behind the town lead to scenic lookouts. Local activities include searching for fossils along the shore of the Mackenzie River, trips by air into the Mackenzie Mountains for spectacular scenery and views of parts of the Canol project route, and fishing trips to remote mountain lakes.

Daily flights connect Norman Wells to Edmonton, Calgary, Yellowknife and Inuvik via Canadian North, First Air and North-Wright Airways.

SOUTH SLAVE REGION:

FORT SMITH

Fort Smith is nestled on the bank of the Slave River, once the main route to the Northwest Territories. The Northern Life Museum and Cultural Centre and Fort Smith Mission Historic Park offer a glimpse into the region’s long history.

The town is headquarters for Wood Buffalo National Park, a UNESCO World Heritage Site and Canada’s largest national park. Interpretive tours are offered to learn about park highlights including the free roaming bison, the salt plains and the endangered Whooping Cranes that nest here each summer.

For whitewater enthusiasts, Class 5 rapids on the Slave River draw paddlers from across the continent. There is one hotel, and meeting centres include the Northern Life Museum and the community recreation centre. There are extensive walking trails and in winter skiing and snowmobiling are popular.

Northwestern Air Lease offers scheduled flights to Fort Smith from Edmonton and Yellowknife.
